ANNEX 2- REGULATORY APPENDIX

This section recalls the main regulations set forth in the contract so that the Contracting Party can better understand the legal references.

ITALIAN CIVIL CODE

Art. 1341.

General Terms and Conditions.

The general terms and conditions drawn up by one of the Contracting Parties shall be effective with respect to the other, if at the time of conclusion of the contract the latter was aware of them or should have been aware of them based on ordinary diligence. In any event, terms and conditions which set forth, in favour of the person who drafted them, limitations of liability, the right to withdraw from the contract or to suspend its performance, or which impose on the other Contracting Party time-barring, limitations on the right to raise objections, restrictions on freedom of contract in relations with third parties, tacit extension or renewal of the contract, arbitration clauses or derogations from the jurisdiction of the courts, shall have no effect unless they are specifically approved in writing.

Art. 1342.

Contract concluded by means of specific forms.

In contracts concluded by signing specific forms, aimed to govern in a uniform manner some contractual relationships, the clauses added to the forms shall prevail over the clauses originally set out in the forms if the added clauses are inconsistent with them, even if the latter have not been deleted.

The provision of the second paragraph of the previous article shall also be complied with.

Art. 1891.

Insurance on behalf of others or on behalf of the person entitled to it.

If the insurance is taken out on behalf of someone else or on behalf of a person entitled to it, the Contracting Party must fulfil the obligations arising from the contract, except for those which by their nature can only be fulfilled by the Policyholder.

The rights arising from the contract belong to the Policyholder, and the Contracting Party, even if in possession of the Policy, cannot enforce them without the express consent of the Policyholder.

The Policyholder shall be entitled to enforce any defence that may be asserted against the Contracting Party in compliance with the contract.

For reimbursement of premiums paid to the Insurer and of contract expenses, the Contracting Party shall have a lien on the amounts due by the Insurer in the same rank as claims for conservation costs.

Art. 1892.

Misrepresentation and reticence with intent or gross negligence.

Inaccurate statements and reticence attributable to the Contracting Party, relating to circumstances such that the Insurer would not have given its consent or would not have given it under the same conditions if it had known the true state of affairs, are grounds for cancellation of the contract when the Contracting Party has acted wilfully or with gross negligence.

The Insurer shall forfeit its right to contest the contract if, within three months of the day on which it became aware of the inaccuracy of the declaration or the reticence, it does not declare to the Contracting Party that it intends to exercise its right of appeal.

The Insurer shall be entitled to the premiums for the period of insurance in progress at the time of the request for cancellation and, in any event, to the premium agreed upon for the first year. If the claim occurs before the expiry of the period indicated in the preceding paragraph, the Policyholder shall not be obliged to pay the insured amount.

If the insurance covers more than one person or more than one thing, the contract apply to those persons or things to which the misrepresentation or reticence does not relate.

Art. 1893.

Misrepresentation and reticence without malice or gross negligence.

If the Contracting Party has acted without malice or gross negligence, inaccurate declarations and reticence are not cause for the termination of the contract, but the Insurer may withdraw from the contract by means of a declaration to be made to the Policyholder within three months from the day on which it became aware of the inaccuracy of the declaration or the reticence.

If the claim occurs before the inaccuracy of the declaration or reticence is known to the Insurer, or before the Insurer has declared to withdraw from the contract, the amount due shall be decreased in proportion to the difference between the agreed premium and the premium that would have been applied if the true state of affairs had been known.

Art. 1894.

Insurance in the name and on behalf of third parties.

In the case of insurance in the name or on behalf of third parties, if the latter have knowledge of the inaccuracy of the declarations or reticence concerning the risk, the provisions of articles 1892 and 1893 apply in favour of the Insurer.

Art. 1897.

Risk Decrease.

If the Contracting Party communicates to the Insurer changes that produce such a decrease in the risk that, had it been known at the time of the conclusion of the contract, it would have led to the stipulation of a lower premium, the Insurer, starting from the due date of the premium or of the instalment of the premium subsequent to the aforesaid communication, may only demand the lower premium, but has the right to withdraw from the contract within two months from the day on which the communication was made.

The declaration of withdrawal from the contract takes effect after one month.

Art. 1898.

Risk Aggravation.

The Contracting Party is required to give immediate notice to the Insurer of any changes that may aggravate the risk in such a way that, had the new state of affairs existed and been known to the Insurer at the time the contract was executed, the Insurer would not have approved the insurance or would have approved it for a higher premium.

The Insurer may withdraw from the contract by giving written notice to the Policyholder within one month of the day on which it has received notice or otherwise became aware of the aggravation of the risk.

The Insurer's withdrawal takes effect immediately if the aggravation is such that the Insurer would not have approved the insurance; it takes effect after fifteen days if the aggravation of the risk is such that a higher premium would have been required for the insurance.

The Insurer shall be entitled to the premiums for the insurance period in progress at the time when the notice of withdrawal is communicated.

If the claim occurs before the expiry of the time limits for the communication and the effectiveness of the withdrawal, the Insurer shall not be liable if the aggravation of the risk is such that it would not have approved the insurance if the new state of affairs had existed at the time of the contract; otherwise the amount due shall be reduced, taking into account the ratio between the premium set in the contract and the one that would have been set if the increased risk had existed at the time of the contract.

Art. 1901.

Failure to pay the premium.

If the Contracting Party fails to pay the premium or the first instalment of the premium as set forth in the contract, the insurance shall remain suspended until midnight of the day when the Contracting Party pays what is due.

If the Contracting Party fails to pay the subsequent premiums on the agreed due dates, the insurance shall be suspended from midnight on the fifteenth day after the due date.

In the hypotheses described in the two preceding paragraphs, the contract shall be terminated if the Insurer, within six months from the day when the premium or the instalment fell due, does not take action to collect it; the Insurer is only entitled to the payment of the premium related to the current insurance period and to the reimbursement of expenses. This rule does not apply to life insurance.

Art. 1910.

Insurance with multiple Insurers.

If several insurances are taken out separately with different Insurers for the same risk, the Policyholder must give notice of all the insurances to each Insurer.

If the Policyholder wilfully fails to give the notice, the Insurers are not required to pay the indemnity.

In the event of a claim, the Policyholder must give notice to all Insurers in accordance with art. 1913, indicating to each the name of the others. The Policyholder may claim from each Insurer the indemnity due under the respective contract, provided that the aggregate amounts collected do not exceed the amount of the loss.

The Insurer who has paid shall have the right of recourse against the others for the proportional apportionment based on the indemnities due according to the respective contracts. If an Insurer is insolvent, its share is divided among the other Insurers.

Art. 1913.

Notice to the Insurer in the event of a claim.

The Policyholder shall give notice of the claim to the Insurer or agent authorized to execute the contract, within three days after the claim occurs or the Policyholder becomes aware of the claim. The notice is not necessary if the Insurer or the agent authorised to execute the contract intervenes within the said time limit in the rescue operations or the assessment of the claim.

In livestock mortality insurance, notice shall be given within twenty-four hours, unless otherwise agreed.

Art. 1914.

Rescue requirement.

The Policyholder must do what he/she can to avoid or lessen the damage.

Expenses incurred by the Policyholder for this purpose shall be borne by the Insurer in proportion of the insured value versus the value of the property at the time of the claim, even if its amount, together with the damage, exceeds the insured amount, and even if the purpose has not been achieved, unless the Insurer proves that the expenses were incurred recklessly.

The Insurer shall be liable for material damage directly caused to the insured property by the means used by the Policyholder to avoid or reduce the damage caused by the claim, unless it proves that these means were used recklessly.
The intervention of the Insurer for the rescue of the insured properties and their preservation shall not affect its rights.
If the Insurer intervenes in the rescue, it shall, at the request of the Policyholder, advance the costs or contribute in proportion to the insured value.

Art. 1915.

Failure to comply with warning or rescue requirement.

The Policyholder who wilfully fails to comply with the obligation to warn or rescue loses the right to compensation.
If the Policyholder negligently fails to comply with this obligation, the Insurer is entitled to reduce the indemnity in proportion to the damage suffered.

Art. 1916.

Insurer's right of subrogation.

The Insurer who paid the indemnity shall be subrogated, up to the amount of the indemnity, to the rights of the Policyholder against liable third parties.
Except in the case of wilful misconduct, subrogation shall not apply if the damage is caused by the Policyholder's children, ascendants, other relatives or relatives-in-law living with the Policyholder or by domestic staff.
The Policyholder is liable to the Insurer for the damage caused to the right of subrogation.
The provisions of this article shall also apply to insurance against accidents at work and accidental misfortunes.

Art. 2952.

Limitation Period in insurance matters.

The right to payment of the premium instalments shall expire one year after the individual due dates.
Other rights deriving from the insurance contract shall expire in two years from the day when the event on which the right is based occurred, with the exception of the life insurance contract whose rights shall expire in ten years.
In liability insurance, the time limit commences on the day on which the third party claims compensation from the Policyholder or brings a legal action against the Policyholder.
The communication to the Insurer of the request submitted by the damaged third party or of the action brought by the latter suspends the limitation period until the injured party's claim has become due and payable or the right of the injured third party is time-barred.
The provision of the preceding paragraph shall apply to an action brought by the re-insured party against the reinsurer for payment of indemnity.
